北京 BEIJING

A tropical rain forest is like an apartment building.
Just as an apartment building has many floors,
a rain forest has many levels.
Different creatures live at each level of the rain forest.

The ground level is the forest floor.
Leaves litter the ground.
Many insects live here.
Ants look for food under the leaves.

forest floor

Tapirs walk among the trees.
They lift up the leaves looking for food.
Armadillos scurry around.

forest floor

The next level is the understory.

Tarantulas spin their webs to catch insects and birds.

Anteaters use their long snouts to sniff out ants.

Iguanas hunt for flies.

understory

Big snakes like boa constrictors wind around branches.
Jaguars climb the lowest branches of the trees and wait for food.
Sometimes they catch fish and crocodiles.

nderstory

The next level is the canopy.

Macaws feast on fruit and berries.

Sloths hang upside down, munching on leaves.

Black spider monkeys swing on vines, chasing each other.

canopy

The top of the rain forest is called the emergent level.
Lots of birds live up here.

The harpy eagle sits at the top of the tree and watches.
It's looking for a bird or monkey to eat.
